Venice, Nov. 9. We have received Letters from the Venetian Fleet, dated the 30th of September, which give the following account. The Captain-General ſailed from Porto Porro in July, and after having cruiſed ſeveral days in the Archipelago, underſtanding that the Turkiſh Fleet commanded by the Captain Baſſa Mezzomorto, was at Spalmadori, and ſhewed no inclination of coming out to Engage him, he left the Men of War at Andros, and went with the Galleys towards the Gulf of Eugeno, to make ſome attempt upon the Enemy by Land, or at leaſt to draw their Fleet out of Port. Soon after the Captain-General was informed, that the Turkiſh Fleet had appeared near Negrepont, conſiſting of 36 Men of War, with divers Galiots and other ſmall Veſſels, whereupon he returned with the Galleys to rejoin the Men of War, and then ſailed with the whole Fleet to meet with the Enemy. On the 22d of Auguſt the two Fleets came in ſight of each other, and about Noon 7 or 8 of the foremoſt Ships on both ſides were Engaged, the reſt not being able to come up, through the calmneſs of the Weather; The Fight continued between the Ships above-mentioned till the night put an end to it. The 23d the Enemy retired towards Scira, and the Venetians purſued them; But the Turks got into Port, where they ſtayed ſeveral days to repair the damage the Ships, that fought, had ſuſtained, 3 of which were very much diſabled, and one made unfit for ſervice; They loſt 3 Galiots, and had about 500 men killed and 300 wounded; Several of the Venetian Ships were likewiſe much damnified in their Sails, Maſts, and Rigging, and we had about 200 men killed and wounded. The Captain General after this ſailed to Andros. In the beginning of September the two Fleets being at Sea, had again fight of each other; but the Turks bore away with all the ſail they could make. On the 19th of September the Captain-General ſent home the Popes and Malteſe Galleys, and ſailed himſelf with the Venetian Galleys and Galeaſſes to Napoli di Romania, to take in Proviſions and other Neceſſaries, which having done, he returned to the Archipelago about the 28th of the laſt month, being reinforced with 3 Men of War. The Turks left 3 of their Ships in the Port of Scira, who were not in a condition to put to Sea, and the Captain General had ſent ſome Men of War to endeavour to deſtroy them.
